the planet's waters are rising, and so is the town excitement. in a sea of beloved dives, it's time someone moved on to the next thing. newcomer level III promises to stir the waters of the drink scene.

so you're thinking underwater bar right? not quite. the truth about level III is that it can't be defined. think of it as a space with no walls, just a glass elevator into a flame. it's complex, but guess what? you're going to like it. ok, so it's in a JW Marriott, but they're revamping the latest in hotel culture. think high and low seating for guests (to create their own dining experience) and a unique combo of lounge, resto, lobby and living space. but here, it's not just about the drinks. if the sea breeze whets your appetite, then be prepared for cali twists on tradish faves: fish tacos and avocado crush, jumbo scallops, lobster and hobbs bacon all make for sea-lacious dining.

seasoned socializers leave your floaties at home. you've graduated to the next level.
